Warwick History

'POST-DOC' CLUB

The Warwick History 'Post-Doc' Club has arrived! The aim is to build up an informal social/ discussion group of former Warwick History Research Students, meeting periodically online and in-person to maintain contact and encourage mutual support for ongoing research and careers. This group is open to all, including those not pursuing post-doc projects or academic careers. We hope that, as the group grows, it will evolve to reflect ideas from members, but the broad purpose is to keep in touch with each other and the department, to provide mutual support, and to give participants an opportunity to float partly formed research ideas, as well as reflecting on the wider relevance of our historical research to contemporary society.
